Office of Insurance Regulation

2012 Legislative Summary

June 2012
Dear Friends,

During the 2012 session, the Legislature passed a number of bills that will impact the Office of Insurance Regulation (Office), the insurance industry and the insurance buying public. The Office’s focus in 2012 was to reign in the cost of Personal Injury Protection (PIP) insurance. The Office teamed with Governor Scott, CFO Atwater, Legislative leaders, the Consumer Advocate, and law enforcement to pass legislation aimed at combating fraud and abuse in the PIP system. In addition to PIP reform, the Legislature passed several other bills that make changes to the insurance code. Attached for your review is the Office’s 2012 Legislative Summary, which will provide you with a thorough review of all the major initiatives relating to insurance that passed during the session.

In response to the Office’s 2011 PIP Data Call, the Legislature this year took on the difficult task of reforming a system which is being abused to the detriment of all Florida drivers. HB 119 by Representative Jim Boyd (R-Bradenton) will help restore the PIP system to its original intent by making sure that individuals who are truly injured in an automobile accident receive prompt medical treatment for their injuries. HB 119 also seeks to reduce frivolous litigation associated with auto accidents and provides law enforcement additional tools to fight fraud. I am hopeful that this comprehensive legislation will have positive benefits for consumers by reducing the costs associated with fraud and abuse in the current PIP system.

In addition, the Legislature passed HB 1101 by Rep. Mike Horner (R-Kissimmee) which amends several areas of the insurance code. Of particular note are two provisions which will help Florida attract new capital investment. Expanding on last year’s efforts to attract international insurers, HB 1101 expands the opportunities available to large international insurers who will are exempt from licensure if they are offering products to non-US residents outside of the country. Also of note is a provision relating to captive insurers, which will make Florida more attractive for investment by corporations that use captives to insure their business risk. Together, these significant changes should send a signal to potential investors that Florida is “open for business” and help create employment opportunities for the people of our state.

The Legislature once again faced a substantial budget deficit in 2012. Fortunately, after several years of position cuts, this year the Legislature did not reduce Office staff. The Legislature also acknowledged the hard work of our staff by passing a new statute that allows for reimbursement of professional development costs for any Office employee, subject to available resources. This will allow our regulatory professionals to continue to improve the standard of their work, a positive development for both our staff and the entities we regulate.

As always, I remain committed to implementing all the regulatory changes made during the 2012 session in a manner that is consistent with the Legislature’s intent, keeping in mind the Office’s fundamental goal remains unchanged. We will continue to provide fair, fast and professional service to the people of Florida.

Sincerely,

Kevin M. McCarty
